The complete database contains over 76,000 precise records of US ZIP Codes with city, county, US Census geographical data from 2000 census. In addition, the database contains over 554,000 geographical records with US latitudes and longitudes. This highly complete and accurate database is used worldwide for postal and government related applications. US Postal Codes Population [PDF] USA World Compilation The United States of America is the undisputed heavyweight of the global economic weightlifting. Looking at its total GDP, its economy is at par with the global giants. However, despite the vast land and top position, the US economy is divided into 50 states. The federal government governs the nation's economy & as of 2013, is ranked as the world's third largest national government. The US economy is estimated as large, but its government is too small. The size of the economy can be attributed and also it is of such a vast land area and contains too many states. The states generally develop and maintain various resources, it's just that at the national level, as the federal government is too small and does not have the revenue or the administrative capability to deal with diverse issues associated with such a vast country. The issue is further complicated by the fact that the country consists of 50 disparate countries. Sometimes the states are at odds with each other (See: Legal notes for disputes between State Governments). The relations between the states and Federal Government are everywhere, with the federal government having over 3,100 agencies. The US Government has also has over 550,000 employees and a budget of over 4.4 trillion USD. The government makes its revenue through legal means such as taxes, fines and tariffs, if it exceeds the revenue then it makes loans. As of 2013, the United States has the 2nd largest economy in the world, just a few places below China. The total GDP for the United States was $14.3 trillion for 2013, accounting for nearly 30% of the world's total GDP. Its GDP accounts for 27% of the world's total GNP (Gross National Product) and around 12% of the world's total consumption. United States is an extremely diverse country, not only in terms of culture and economy but also geographically. Its cultural melting pot gives it such a rich heritage. The US is the home of nearly half of the world
